BACKGROUND

I have over 25 years' experience working with multinational companies and charitable organisations globally. I began my career in Human Resources and Executive Search in the UK, Channel Islands and Hong Kong. For the past eight years I have worked in leadership consulting.

Within Learning & Development, I developed my skills to focus on building meaningful partnerships between the business community and also with non-profitable organisations and charities. A lot of my expertise has involved organising leadership development programmes bringing together corporates and NGOs to create a meaningful learning journey connecting the Head, Heart, Body and System.

I have also organised events bringing together all members of the community (business, government, education and civil society).
