

POSITION

SENIOR CONSULTANT

As a consultant, Robert specialises in bringing leaders together to solve problems that matter. He supports clients with a mix of clear processes and walking the line of developing the capacities to navigate and lead within complex eco systems, while making a difference to critical projects through insight, people and culture.

His unique combination of humanity, insight and knowledge allows him to invoke the capacity of the client to explore and solve problems while guiding and supporting with the latest methodologies and approaches as required.

Robert's long experience with leaders at all levels provides a depth of understanding and appreciation for the context leaders find themselves in. Making the transition from strong individual contribution to altruistic teams making progress on big issues together is not an easy one to make under the pressure to perform, that comes from so many directions today. Robert's clients have appreciated his support to get clear on this intention and develop the collective skill and will to stay on track.
